The River Teify rises in north-east Cardiganshire, and, after a winding course of about 53 miles, runs into the southern extremity of Cardigan Bay by means of a broad estuary on which the town of Cardigan is situated. For the greater part of its course the Teify flows through scenery of very great beauty, richly wooded hills sloping down to the very water's edge.

Dear Florence

I was up Kenel Nin way last evening & ran across Alice & Sydney shopping. Alice says it is practically settled about the house as several alterations are going to be made. They send their love to you. How do you like this kind of card, I think it is fine.

Yours &c
Maurice
